Forecast for Tuesday 05 Apr 2022

Weather: Overcast, with spells of snow, even to low levels. Over the southwest of the area around Skye and Lochalsh likely to turn to rain at most levels in the morning. Further north and east, a sharp transition to snow at most levels, this lasting longest over the far north, with the less cold air possibly reaching Easter Ross in the evening.

Chance of cloud-free hill tops above 800m: Little chance through the day.

Low cloud and visibility: Extensive cloud down to 300-500m and some lower patches, bases lifting in the south in the evening and tending to break at times. Visibility often poor in snow and heavier rain.
